Cooper Seykens

Born and raised in the Netherlands, Cooper Seykens began his photographic journey at just 17, traveling across the United States with his father. During these travels, he captured powerful black-and-white street portraits that quickly gained recognition.
Cooper Seyken's photography is an estament to his ability to capture raw emotion and authenticity. His signature style attracted attention, leading people to request similar portraits of well-known personalities in the Netherlands.
His images capture intimate moments, offering new perspectives and emotional depth in his subjects. Whether through black-and-white portraits or more contemporary compositions, his work is distinguished by a natural ability to put his subjects at ease, creating an atmosphere where confidence and vulnerability coexist. Through this approach, Seykens creates powerful images that reveal the unique personalities and stories of his subjects.
