Reinhard Görner :

The architecture, framed by the edges of the image invite the viewer to step into the space and follow the artist's own imagination. Görner's photos refer to the spacial vastness great architecture that has been celebrating throughout history, bringing to mind architectural periods room where beauty and tranquility meet.

Hanna Sidorowicz :

Her work is characterized by evanescent figures that appear to have existed for centuries. She paints in a constant homage to renaissance themes, libraries, Venice, 'Menines', scenes of plots and the pisa skyline.

David Gista :

Sweeping backgrounds, waterfalls of paint, isolated figures, piles of books poised as skyscrapers... Gista's themes may change but his style remains easily recognizable: always very dramatic, evoking cinema-scapes.

Niemand :

This visual effect along with the different associations we all have with the music to be found inside these sleeves turns these photomontages in to personal voyages of emotions and memories. Making new connections through images and sound that has a different, but strong emotional meaning for all of us despite age, generation, race, or gender.
